

Social Sciences Society HKUSU

Session 2010

Proposed Ming
Cabinet

About Ming Cabinet

The proposed cabinet name of this session's cabinet is 'to sound'.

In Chinese, 'to sound' (Ming) originally refers to the sounds of birds; this meaning could be extended as 'to speak out the voices'. 'To sound' symbolizes our Society's aim of 'speaking out the voices' for the members and even the society as a whole. According to a Chinese idiom, 'a hand cannot make any sounds by itself'. Our cabinet understands exactly the importance of both representing members' voices and providing means for students of HKU, or even for the society, to express their opinions freely through various external functions organized by SSS. As the result, we hope to extend the expression of voices in the society to the greatest extent possible.

Our cabinet recognizes the remarkable relationship between social sciences and the human society and the numerous aspects of knowledge social sciences covers as an academic field. Thus, our cabinet wishes to encourage the people from all aspects to 'speak out their voices' simultaneously. By doing so, we shall maximize their advantages and promote social sciences to the society.

In extension to the meaning of speaking out the voices, the Chinese word 'to sound' has a homophone of 'to manifest'. As mentioned in the motto of HKU 'wisdom and virtue', the manifestation of virtue should be important to the society. Our cabinet shall through our work bear the social responsibility and concern towards social affairs, in order to 'speak out for the manifestation of virtue'. We wish also that students in HKU and the society would share the same voices towards social inequality, for the sake of revealing virtue. Just as the Chinese maxim 'whenever you speak out, you awaken people' states, by speaking out to society about our dreams and what we believe to be right, we shall be recognized – that is our ultimate goal.

If our cabinet is elected, we promise to try our hardest to 'speak out all voices', in order to be responsible to members and the society.
